The Mormon Prophet.

A correspondent of the New York Times, writing from Salt Lake City, gives the following account of the appearance of Brigham Young before his people, after the judicial proceedings which affected his liberation:

The prophet, seer and revelator being again a free man, much curiosity was felt as to the manner in which he would express himself at the Tabernacle on Sunday. It will be remembered that the forty-second semi-annual conforence of the society, convened a month ago, had been adjourned from Sunday to Sunday owing to the absence of Brigham, no other offieer of the Church having power to close the session. Thousands of citizens of all classes, Mormon and Gentile, flocked to the Temple on Sunday morning and afternoon, and the spacious edifice, which has been previously described in this correspondence, was crowded to its full capacity. Devout saints recognized a singular appropriateness in the opening hymn, which was sung by the choir:

"An angel from on high, The long, long silence broke, &c.

This was followed by: "When earth in bondage long had lain. And darkness o'er the nations reigned," &c. An amusing colloquy then ensued between

Brigham and his congregation, as follows: Brigham-A word to the Latter-day Saints

Good morning. Congregation-Good morning.

Brigham—How do you do? Congregation—Very well. Brigham—How is your faith this morning? Congregation-Strong in the Lord. Brigham-How do you think I look after my long confinement?

Congregation-First-rate! These singular proceedings, which I give literally as they occurred, seemed to put the his people, and was not an inattentive listener to what followed. As a pulpit orator Brigham Young is rather a sorry model. True, he has a rude species of eloquence, which accounts in part for his sway over an illiterate and unamong his followers would such an harangue as I listened to from his lips, on Sunday last, be dignified with the name of sermon, or be listened to with the slightest degree of attention or respect. Its distinctive features were an arrogant assumption of prophetic powers, coarse allusions to his enemies and persecutors, interlarded here and there with slang phrases and an occasional touch of profanity, and a total disregard of the simplest rules of English gramdisregard of the simplest rules of English grammer. Underneath all this, though manifested suit of Mary E. Wilmer's administrator values in words than in tone and manner, was plainly discernible a terrible under current of offer for sale at public auction, on SATURDAY. plainly discernible a terrible under current of bitter hatred and a longing for revenge against those who had been instrumental in bringing about the recent prosecutions. This impression was only heightened by his obvious efforts at the repression of his real sentiments, and not a few Gentiles left the Tabernacle devout- ly thankful that they still had the protection of fronting on said alley about 20 feet, in depth 40 the Federal Judiciary and Gen. Morrow's regiment of blue coats at Camp Douglas.

CANDIDATES.

A LLOW me to suggest the name of SAMU-EL BEACH as a suitable candidate for the Mayoralty. Mr. Beach is an old citizen of Alexandria; has always performed faithfully and well the public duties that have from time to time devolved upon him, and would, without doubt make an efficient and satisfactory Mayor. I write this without having consulted Mr. Beach at all on the subject, but I have no doubt that if asked to become a candidate by any respectable number of his fellow-citizens he would consent to do so.

My life-long devotion to the principles of democratic liberty, my editorial experience and pronounced opinions upon all questions of pubic policy, my active participation in the labors and discussions of every political campaign which has occured in Virginia during the past ten years, ought to be sufficient guarantees that, if elected, I will discharge faithfully and fearlessly all the duties of the office. I respectfully submit to the candidates-as it is probable there will be a large number of them -that we canvass the district together, in order that the people may better determine who shall be their choice in the nominating convention.
